

Nearly 12 million individuals are admitted to jail in a year's time, according to the Bureau of Justice Statistics. Meeting the needs of this continuously growing and changing population is big business, especially in light of recent far-reaching Federal legislation.

Since its introduction to the corrections community in 1987, our award-winning American Jails has had the distinction of being the only national magazine focused solely on the day-to-day management and operations of jails and local detention facilities. Additionally, it is the only publication of its kind that reaches every jail facility in the United States.

American Jails also reaches government personnel at the local, State, and Federal levels, along with individuals in the private sector.

Published bimonthly, our magazine features articles, commentaries, and resources on a wide range of topics pertinent to today's correctional professional. Recent special editions have examined issues relating to construction/architecture, facility operations and administrative practices, healthcare, inmate programming, security, technology, and staff development. Our issues have a long shelf life, and the current and past five issues are available online to our members.
