Are you aware that there is a gold mine of intelligence in your jail? Do you know how to excavate this intelligence? The idea of crime mapping and intelligence-led policing has been on the streets for some time; however, the intelligence that can be found in jails is often forgotten. During this training, we discuss the tools available to unearth this intelligence; and how it can be used not only to proactively prevent crime in the jail, but also to solve crimes in the community. Additionally, we discuss the idea of crime mapping the jail, then using this information to identify “hot” spots and focus intelligence and security efforts on those areas.
